Techniques

Grid

While styling the website I used Grid to allow for more than one paragraph or line to be in one row which gives the website a more balanced look.

Color Changes

Some color usage had to be revised. I used different colors to make texts to stand out more and improve the overall beauty, attractiveness and style of the website.

Background Color Changes.

Just as color changes I used the background-color to let particular areas stand out to give the website a better, more modern and attractive look.

Padding and Margin

Padding and margin were also key while designing the website. Padding was mainly used to add more space inside a container and give more space to a text making it look more spaced out and free. While margin on the other hand was used to add more space outside a container, move a text from one place to another and also give more space to a text or a sentence.

Height and Width

Just as their names suggest height was used to increase the height of a container or a button and width was used to increase the width of a container or a button.

Font-Family

Font-family was used to change the font of text.

Font-Size

Font-size was used to change the size of different HTML tags.

Font-weight

Font-weight was used to change the boldness of a text.

Design Choices

Colors

For color I used black for most of the text, but white for some text added in containers that had black as its background-color.

Font-weight

Depending on the text I made some texts thicker than the others depending on importance.

Font-Family

For all text I used the font-family "Arial" and fallback fonts of "Helvetica" and "sans-serif".
